The Law Has Changed!

Motor Vehicle Accident Update

Since September of 2016, the Bureau of Workers' Compensation has excluded the cost of a claim from an employer's experience if the employer could establish that a claim resulted from a non-at-fault motor vehicle accident involving a third party.

In order for the BWC to charge such claims to the Surplus Fund, employers have been required to provide proof that the at-fault third party was issued a citation for violation of a motor vehicle law. Due to a recent change in the law, employers are no longer required to submit proof of a citation with an AC-28 application.

As of September 13, 2018, employers can request relief for motor vehicle accidents even where the at-fault, third party was not issued a citation. See R.C. § 4123.932. As long as there is other documentation to demonstrate that the third party was primarily liable for the accident, employers can submit a request to charge the Surplus Fund without having to provide a citation.

AC-28 applications will no longer be denied solely because no citation was issued to the at-fault third party. The law applies retroactively to claims occurring on or after July 1, 2017. The BWC is also accepting applications from employers where an AC-28 was previously denied.
